

Deposit eDelivery Change in Terms Notice

What's changing and when?

Beginning mid-May, we're changing the way that paperless settings are applied to checking, savings and money market accounts (deposit accounts). When you select paperless delivery for an account or document, we deliver your documents electronically through Online Banking.

The following changes will apply to you if you use paperless delivery of documents for your deposit account:

- For each deposit account where you're currently paperless for account statements, you'll automatically become paperless for all deposit notices and other documents available for paperless delivery, except tax documents. Tax documents will continue to follow a separate sign-up process.
- As new deposit document types become available for paperless delivery, your previously chosen delivery preference for the account will also apply to the new document types. This means if you're currently paperless on a specific deposit account, your paperless preference will also apply to new document types as they are added to the Statements and Documents page for your account and become available for paperless delivery. Note that some documents aren't currently available for paperless delivery.

What else do I need to know?

You can change your paperless settings at any time by visiting the Paperless Settings page in Online Banking. Changes to your delivery preferences may take up to 2 months before they are effective.
